AMUSEMENTS.

Three prime essentials are necessary to bring success to an actor in these days. These are talent, a good company and a good play. When the season is off and the night is hot the actor who has these essentials is all the greater. Cyril Scott demonstrated last evening that he was the possessor of all three and the verdict of the final curtain fell was that he had scored a success.

Mr. Scott left a splendid impression with his audience. The characteristic that dominates his work is sincerity. This is shown in the little details that so often overlooked and that mean so much for success or failure. There is a heartiness, too, in his manner on the stage that is most winning. As the poor artist who adopts the child of the dying woman and watches the child grow to beautiful womanhood he gives an exhibition of the finer attributes of human nature that is beautiful and uplifting. His final reward in the play is the fitting climax of a play that is worth while throughout.

Mr. Scott has surrounded himself with a company of unusual talent. Perhaps the two members of the company who gave the greatest pleasure last evening were Charles B. Wells as Kuntz, the servant, and Miss Mary Keogh as Puckers. In their way these two are stars. Their comedy is refined and at the same time irresistible.

As Claudia, the orphan, in her three stages of development, Miss Beryl and Helen Pullman and Miss Gladys Wharton left nothing to be desired, although Miss Helen easily carried off the honors. Miss Ida Stupen as the mother, who was exceptionally strong in her parts. The whole interest of the play hinges on the relations between Puckers and Claudia, a child of five to a woman of eight. It is a good play with a good moral, and is entitled to the successful run it has had in eastern cities.

The "Prince Charming" runs throughout the balance of the week. A good audience has proved the heat of the theater last evening, and in spite of the heat was generous in its applause. The play was given before the curtain, responded in a decidedly neat little speech of thanks for the reception accorded him and his company.

IT WAS ALL DUE TO HUMIDITY

Thermometer Registers Only 90 Degrees, but Weather Proves Oppressive in Salt Lake.

Mr. Humidity was much in evidence yesterday and many perspiring Salt Lakeers looked with amazement at the thermometer when they were told that the maximum mark for the day was only 90 degrees. It seemed strange indeed in the coolest part of the shade. The humidity, according to Dr. Hyatt, is caused by the low pressure and is being down on Salt Lake, bringing with it occasional showers. That means that it may rain sixteen drops and it may rain all day.

This same low barometric pressure continued over the plateau and the upper region yesterday and today, and was brought by rain storms over portions of Utah, Arizona, North Dakota, Minnesota, Manitoba, the Ohio valley and the Atlantic coast.

The warm wave continued over the eastern states. New York jumped back to 86 degrees, Chicago to 84, and St. Louis was Cincinnati. Chicago still had cool weather, with 74 as the highest mark recorded. Yuma registered 74, and had been last week climbed back into the 90 band wagon and plenty of heat is the watchword throughout the country.

NEW FREIGHT TARIFFS.

Transmissouri Association in Session Here.

The opening meeting of the Transmissouri Freight association was held yesterday in the parlors of the Knott hotel. The meetings are private and only members of the association are admitted. The association meets for the purpose of arranging freight rates and the new schedule is submitted to the Interstate commerce commission at the close and is not made public until the commission has passed upon it.

Chairman Polet called the meeting to order yesterday. There were seventeen delegates from various roads in attendance. The grievances of shippers were taken up in the order in which they were presented. Representatives of local stationery and paper houses asked a reduction in the freight rates on paper. Orson H. Hewlett asked that cost of shipping green tea be reduced. The brewers will appear before the meeting to ask a modification in the freight rates on beer.

MEASURE AGAIN VETOED.

Revised Garbage Ordinance Turned Down by the Mayor.

The revised garbage ordinance passed by the council Monday evening was again vetoed by Mayor Thompson yesterday. This ordinance provided that no cans should be set on the streets or sidewalks pending collection. The mayor in his veto says that this provision would increase the cost of collection 30 per cent and that the city is not in a position to care for the increased burden.

The original ordinance, providing that all cans must be set twenty-five feet inside the property line, was also vetoed by the mayor and the council passed it in a revised form holding that it would meet his requirements.
